The Scots College Music Department
presents the

Floyd Cooley
Brass Masterclass

on Thursday 11 August at 6pm.

Nationally and internationally known tubist Floyd O. Cooley has been heard in recital throughout the United States, Europe, Australia, New Zealand and Japan, appearing as soloist, clinician, giving masterclasses, and as a former member of the San Francisco Symphony from 1969 – 2001.

In 2001 Floyd turned his career exclusively to teaching. Currently, he gives master classes and teaches private lessons throughout New Zealand, Australia, Japan, and Europe. He is a faculty member at the DePaul University School of Music where he serves as the Brass Coordinator and teaches tuba, brass concepts, pedagogy, and teaching people to teach one-on-one.
